

LEGAL PRACTICE

Forum on collaboration

SOLICITOR Amanda Millyard (right) led a group of practitioners in their first interdisciplinary practice meeting with American counterparts on Thursday morning aimed at helping clients resolve issues outside of court.

The forum highlighted the practical benefits of collaborative practice for clients and focused on practice techniques used by practitioners in the respective jurisdictions.

"The main challenge is for people to be aware of their dispute resolution choices," Ms Millyard said.

Mediator Michael Keogh said while the primary focus was on divorce proceedings, the group could help in a range of legal issues.

More info is at qacp.org.au